Impacting women lives across the world

Herstory & Our Why

Meet Banwo Akinyinka

Banwo Akinyinka was a mother, daughter, sister and philanthropist. She passed away post surgery at the age of forty-eight.

Born December 15, 1948, she was educated in the field of hospitality. A caring, vivacious and disciplinarian woman, she was well known in the community and fondly referred to as "Mummy Flat 11".

Her passing, illuminated the path to create this foundation to empower women but most importantly to engage each other in embracing self-care, knowing that when we care of our individual self, we will be able to properly care for others.

FOUR PILLARS

● Wealth Development

We at Banwo, are in the practice of encouraging our base to start developing the habits of generating wealth and passing that information down to generations to be able to truly develop generational wealth.

● Entrepreneurship

We at Banwo, aim to hone in on the different levels of entrepreneurship to build an understand as a guide to building a legacy.

● Advocacy

We at Banwo understands that criticality of the need and look to have our fellows learn to occupy those spaces and be the power need to improve the lives of others.

● Health & Wellness

We at Banwo, we aim to aid in the discovery for better health and overall wellness.
